

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a method for weaving fabrics that comprise in at least some sections multiple layers, especially one-piece woven (OPW) airbags comprising single-layer, double-layer and multi-layer sections. According to the inventive method, weaves or weave combinations are produced in the double- or multi-layer sections that are different from the plain weave.